1. PROBLEM & CAMPUS CONTEXT

- The Problem: Campus life lacks an engaging framework to combat procrastination and low participation across daily routines.
- Why It Matters: Without structural accountability, users struggle to build positive habits, maintain productivity, or visibly track their personal development.
- Campus Context: The system is specially designed with the Harbin Institute of Technology, Shenzhen (HITSZ) campus in mind to foster a localized culture of excellence.

2. TARGET USERS

- Who it is for: Primarily students at HITSZ, but highly adaptable for people of any age group who want to compete and hold themselves accountable for completing good tasks.
- Motivations: Driven by self-improvement, tracking real-world habits, maintaining daily progress streaks, and engaging in friendly peer competition.
- Frustrations: Disorganized routines, a lack of visible recognition for daily productive efforts, and uninspired habit-tracking methods.

3. GAMIFICATION SYSTEM DESIGN

Encouraged Behaviors

- Academic & Skills: 2+ hour deep work sessions, portal tracking, coding practice, and online certifications.
- Health & Wellness: Daily workouts, nutritious eating, meditation app tracking, and personal journaling.
- Community Culture: Campus club activities, volunteer work, and peer tutoring.

Gamification Mechanics

- Proof of Work Verification: Users must upload a real photo or screenshot to validate task completion before rewards are unlocked.
- Progression Tiers: Earned XP dynamically advances users through explicit profile levels and ranks from "Newcomer" to "Legend".
- Retention Loops: A visual daily flame streak to incentivize regular habit retention, paired with a 20-hour quest cooldown to prevent system spam.
- Economy & Standings: Dual reward payouts of Gold and XP feeding directly into a live campus Leaderboard to fuel competition.
